

Few more entries, lots more quality at Ag. Fair

Although entries in the Drayton Valley Agricultural Fair last Saturday were not much more numerous than last year, the quality of the entries, and the interest around in the community is what counts, says Olga Brown, organizer of the fair. There were approximately 1,100 entries, ranging from baked goods, to horticulture, handicrafts, arts and crafts, vegetables, animals, work from children, some rabbits and poultry. Around 800 people entered the competition.

The number of handicrafts, baking and arts and crafts entries were up this year, says Mrs. Brown. Vegetables and horticulture entries were down, but Mrs. Brown says she thinks it is due to the bad weather this summer.

There was high competition among winners in the handicrafts, baking and arts and crafts entries. It is going to be difficult to decide who the several winners will be, says Mrs. Brown.

More young women are entering the fair this year, and Mrs. Brown says that the new women to the fair are interested in exhibiting more than ever.

One of the contributing factors towards the increase in quality in the entries was the weather.

Rain pours on Warburg event

A torrential downpour Sunday forced cancellation of the annual day of the Warburg Trotter pull and reduced the expected crowds at the event by half. Only 1,000 people turned up at the weekend event, though 1,000 were expected, mostly because of the steady rainfall on Sunday.

"It's really disappointing when something like this happens," says one organizer, Linda MacLachlan, who added that nearly 1,000 people came to the Sunday event hoping the rain would let off.

The five-trotter pull, the modified 1,000 lb. class and the four-wheel drive tractor pull events were all cancelled on Sunday.

Oil rig should have been shut down

An oil field specialist investigating the cause of an oil rig collapse near Lethbridge says the rig would have closed down if the rig had been shut down. The specialist says the rig was not shut down because of a safety hazard. The specialist says the rig was not shut down because of a safety hazard.

Mr. Cargill adds that he did not know whether the rig was shut down. He says the rig was not shut down because of a safety hazard. The specialist says the rig was not shut down because of a safety hazard.

When asked whether he was contacted by anyone, Mr. Cargill replied no. The Western Review attempted a number of times to contact Mr. Fred Hines, Alberta superintendent for occupational health and safety. Mr. Hines was not available for comment.

Safety improvements coming

With the passage of drilling activity in Alberta has come an increase in accidents and the oil industry and the provincial government have been meeting to improve safety measures taken at oil sites. Meetings between representatives of the oil industry and government departments, including the Energy and the Workers' Health, Safety and Compensation department, started early this year following a study which recommended improvement of safety at the rig.

Mr. Cargill says that he is "a little bit" about the reason behind the accident that took place on the rig. He says the rig was not shut down because of a safety hazard. The specialist says the rig was not shut down because of a safety hazard.

Our Opinion

Men are never so likely to settle a question rightly as when they discuss it freely. —Lord Macaulay

Senior success

It began in January of 1980 and ended last Saturday—an amazingly short time to organize a province-wide event which will probably turn out to be the most successful 75th anniversary project of all.

With a grant of $75,000—a mere fraction of $75 million allotted for Alberta's birthday bash—the senior citizens of the province staged their own version of an Olympiad (minus the political wrangles) in Camrose last week.

An estimated 30,000 Albertans over the age of 55 competed in zone competitions across the province leading to the three-day finale.

The atmosphere in Camrose, from all accounts, was fantastic. Old acquaintances were met, new friends were made, and the competition was keen but always friendly and sportsmanlike.

The participants, particularly in our zone, were grand sportsmen and everyone was more than happy with what went on," says local zone co-ordinator Arlene Monaghan.

Our congratulations to all the players, organizers, clubs and committees, and to all the individuals who volunteered their time to make the Games such a success.

As Peter Trynchy, provincial recreation minister, said in Camrose the Senior Games were a way of saying thanks "to all of you who came from all over the world to make this province what it is today."

And the seniors, the same ones who built this province, showed the rest of us how to celebrate this historic anniversary—with spirit, pride, friendliness and a sense of fun.

The Games have shown us the spirit and life in the seniors and brought a lot of excitement and good times to the pioneers of this province.

The Games may well have been the first of their kind in Canada, but from all indications and the huge success of the event, there will be more.

Government gas

The new regulations announced this month concerning the Natural Gas Protection Plan are a new version of a six year old program.

The new twist is meant to save the Alberta government some money over the next few years. Under the old program the government would have ended up paying more money to "shield" Albertans from price increases that it would have earned from natural gas royalties.

The funny thing about all this is the stated goal of the program—to shelter residents, commercial establishments and industry from the effects of large price increases caused by the rising value of energy resources.

These very same words could be applied to the federal government's fight to keep oil prices down.

However, the federal government does not have the money from oil and gas royalties, to allow high energy prices and still shelter the consumers. So its strategy has been to keep down the domestic price of oil and gas much to the chagrin of oil and gas producing provinces.

"If there's a cloud in Alberta, it rains on Drayton Valley." That local adage sums up our dismal weather situation. I don't think I've known a place that has had more events cancelled because "somebody forgot to turn it off!"

Just as an example, this weekend was supposed to be a bonanza as far as photos for the paper was concerned. The Pembina Superstars competition and the Winberg tractor pull on Sunday were both rained out. The football game on Saturday between Whiffy and Crude was disrupted, but the show still went on. Not much fun for the spectators, or the photographer.

But then again, think of all the advantages rain brings. You don't have to wash your car as often. The front yarder and hose can stay sitting on top of the box of Christmas decorations in the basement all winter.

Think of how much money you save watering tropical rubber boots. Instead of $80 Guccis. And if your flower garden gets flooded out, there are thousands of Indian paintbrush, larkspur, and what not covering the sides of the road.

You have to live in a raincoat, but if you buy the clear plastic ones (available at most drug stores) people can still see those lovely summer clothes you wear to the city to buy.

A rainy summer also saves you from getting adventures and splashing night outdoors. Magazine won't go complaining anyway (there is always a chance of getting mailed).

And if your veggies get drowned out before they get a chance to see the day, wait, the Farmer's Market is fun to go to anyway.

Besides, you can blame no money flop on weather. If an event dies out before it starts, you can always say the rain kept people away. Or, for cloudy looking truckers.

The weather is one omnipresent factor that can take all the wind out of your car, and doesn't fight back (I don't think). So what are we going to do when winter comes? I'm sure we'll think of something.

Canada should be able to market all its grain

The initial prices announced by the Canadian Wheat Board at the end of July for all board grains are too low and are not an accurate reflection of present market conditions. With prospects for a substantially smaller North American crop and strong international demand, the wheat board should have seized this ideal opportunity to set the initial price at higher levels to realistically reflect costs of production.

The drought conditions in the West have caused poorer crops than normal and farmers will need higher initial payments since they are not receiving the money through a final payment next year. The cash is needed to help farmers through the abnormal conditions, not later, when conditions improve and they will be in a more secure cash-flow position.

According to the announcement, No. 1 CWB wheat will return at $4.35 a bushel for the new crop year. The wheat board, however, can expect to receive of least $4.75 in Vancouver when the wheat is sold. The gap between these two payments is far too large.

Because of the drought conditions in western Canada, our grain harvest will be down considerably from last year. As a result, the amount available for export will also be off somewhat. While wheat yields are expected to be more normal in Alberta, they will only reach 45 to 48 percent of normal in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Barley and rye production has been even harder hit.

The winter wheat crop in the USA did not suffer the effects of the drought and will remain close to last year's harvest. Feed production there is also up by about seven percent. The Canadian barley crop will be near last year's but only because of increased acreage in that crop.

Wheat production in Australia, the third largest wheat exporter behind the USA and Canada, is expected to be down by ten percent while that of coarse grain export will be up by about 40 per cent due to increased acreage.

Wheat production in the rest of the world, in particular the USSR, the EC and Argentina, will be up slightly this year but increased domestic demand should keep most of this additional yield at the export market.

The major shortage on the international market this year will likely be feed grains which were most affected by the North American drought. The initial price announced by the wheat board for No. 1 feed barley will be pegged at $2.70 a bushel in order to encourage and maintain adequate supplies.

At present, Canada faces a challenge to maintain its traditional position as the second largest exporter of wheat in the world. In the past decade the USA has rapidly expanded its lead in the international wheat trade to capture over 45 per cent of the market. Canada has had a rather stable export position in this same period, due mostly to grain transportation problems. For this reason, Australia has been gaining rapidly on our position and now threatens to overtake us.

With our transportation problems hopefully now behind us, due largely to a revised management system instituted by our government, Canada should now be able to market all the grain its farmers can produce. Farmers, however, will not produce if they can not receive an adequate return for their grain. With this in mind, I moved a Private Member's Motion in June to encourage the government to "consider the advisability of selling floor prices related to costs of production for normal and increased crops one month before planting in order that farmers may be provided adequate returns and to assure sufficient production to meet Canada's domestic and export needs."

Letters to Review

Look carefully at prices

Dear Editor:
A recent, obvious difference in cost of two medical prescriptions purchased at two drug stores has served me to question: "Have you recently looked at the cost of your prescriptions—closely I mean?"

My husband received two prescriptions, for a cold, provided for at a cost of $1.00.

Because the cough syrup, one of the two, was purchased two days ago and the pills not quite seven days and the cough was still troublesome, he repeated his visit to the same doctor, and received the same prescriptions.

These prescriptions were provided in greater quantities, at a different drug store because of convenience.

This time for one-third the cost of the first visit.

I would like to suggest, on two sides I am in your paper this summer.

The first one was Dr. Helen Western. We congratulated the Timeshare Hotel and the second one was Alberta Agriculture wishing the Drayton Valley fair success.

Both of these advertisers are to be commended. They have taken the time and did so just automatically because the highest priced drug store and compare it to the lowest priced one!

I would be naive to believe that possibly these prices differences are occurring regularly and we as consumers are should be "shopping around."

Yours truly,
C. G. G. G.

Mayor welcomes Welsh Ventures

A group of Welsh Venturers passed through Drayton Valley last Thursday night before setting off on a four-day canoe trip down the North Saskatchewan river to Edmonton.

Fifteen Welsh boys and girls are touring the province for one month with seven Ventures from Brooks. They are being sponsored by the Alberta 75th anniversary committee. Ventures are part of the Scout movement.

The visitors, who came from Penarth in South Wales on August 3, are camping throughout Alberta for the month.

Venture leader Ken Fildes says Canada is fantastic.

Minister may approve playschool location

The playschool committee has been allowed to rent the Eldorado teacherage for their school this fall for the sum of $1 a year, subject to ministerial approval.

The County Board of Education agreed last week to loan the teachers to the play school, provided that Education Minister Dave King agrees. MLA Shirley Cripps, who is approaching the minister this week, says she "doesn't see any problem."

"If the teacherage is useful, and it's needed, I don't see why in the world it would be turned down," says Mrs. Orsina.

"Everything is so big here - the cars, even the hamburger."

Chamber of Commerce representative Dwight Denton and mayor Nevis LaBranche welcomed the group to Drayton Valley. Mr Denton presented 75th anniversary coins to the youth on behalf of the Chamber, and mayor LaBranche gave them Drayton Valley pins as

Although the visit was short, the group sang Happy Birthday to the mayor who had left a birthday party at home in order to meet them.

While waiting for the mayor to come, the Welsh youth appeared amazed at the "moped up" cars that were cruising around the block by the scout hall.

"I've never seen anything

But they didn't seem to appreciate the stunting antics of one truck driver, who burned rubber, sending a cloud of smoke into the air. "Stupid," muttered a girl.

The group has been given a $5,000 grant from the Alberta 75th anniversary fund for their four week trip. The grant covers local transportation and food.

The group has climbed three mountains; Table, Whistler, and South Forks as part of the 75th anniversary project. South Forks, which took them three days to climb, was the most difficult, says Mr. Pile.

Cavalcade visits town

A cavalcade of Albertans will be in Drayton Valley this Saturday as part of a provincial salute to the Northwest Territories. About 50 people from the cavalcade are expected in town around 10:30 a.m.

Saturday where they will be treated to a luncheon co-hosted by the Town and the Chamber of Commerce.

In 1905 Alberta was separated from the Northwest Territories and became a province.

The cavalcade is travelling throughout Alberta proceeding to Hay River in the Northwest Territories. A plaque will be presented to the group who will donate it to the Hay River museum.

Kepplerville school location

Council, school board disagree on proposal

By Dale Lamm

Final plans for the relocation of Kepplerville school is being laid out, as the Council of Parkland board of education turned down a plan for the facility proposed by Calgary Power.

In a regular meeting on August 18, the board rejected the plan because it was a revision, running diagonally across the property, out of phase from three directions.

On the school site, we wouldn't like to have a school bus drivers don't have to make a few detours to get on the school grounds," Mrs. Brynch, education secretary, told the Western News.

The site was chosen by Calgary Power officials, and Mrs. Brynch said that the land was chosen because Calgary Power didn't have any other sites.

"I don't think anyone from Calgary Power contacted us about the proposed site, and they (Calgary Power) were just trying to sneak land in so that they couldn't sue," Mr. Brynch said.

He said that negotiations with the city council will continue in an effort to find a new site. "But no agreement (with Calgary Power) will be made until a site is found."

Mr. Brynch said also denied Mr. Brynch's statement that the school site had been pushed on the board, and said that the park board was not involved in the regular meeting on August 18, councilors noted that the board would be involved in rejecting the site.

"The motion, as passed by council, asked, asks the board to amend its resolution to state that 'Calgary Power be instructed to proceed with relocation of the Kepplerville Elementary school to the proposed site in the north-west corner of the school grounds,'"

Calgary Power, education secretary, told the Western News, that the motion was passed by a 10-5 vote.

Chevron plans to water flood

Chevron Standard Ltd. is planning to use up to 300,000 gallons per day from ground water wells to water flood all wells in the Brimley West Pembina region.

The ground water wells are about 300 feet deep and the water would be directed for use in oil wells. Currently, Chevron has one well using water flooding to enhance recovery of oil and is proposing to water flood three other wells.

According to Water Resources branch regulations, the company must submit study on the matter and the division is not likely to have any objections to the division.

Don't think there is a problem with five wells, said the spokesman.

Lodgepole bear problems lead two men to court

Each bear is unusual number have appeared in Lodgepole this summer, and traps weren't working in two Lodgepole areas, and shot a bear just outside the hamlet boundaries on July 30.

John MacDonald and Grant Wilson sued each other last week for allegedly shooting wildlife.

Mrs. Donna Wilson of Lodgepole, says this summer's bears were the people's dream, looking in their windows, and eating garbage.

"The two weeks, we didn't let our children outside to play, unless we were with them," she said last week.

Mrs. Wilson says she believes bears were a problem this year because the land itself was being upgraded, and the garbage was being buried. The bears, who usually eat the garbage at the dump, but so where else to go, so they hit the hamlet.

John MacDonald, another Fish and Wildlife officer, says although he did not know the case, he believes the reason why the bears were being caught in the traps was because people were putting garbage inside the traps. The traps wouldn't work because the bears couldn't get inside them.

Mr. Brynch said he believes the conflict between the people of Lodgepole and Mr. Wilson arose because the people would not cooperate with Mr. Wilson, and the men probably wouldn't want the bears if they had known that the Wildlife officer from Edmonton was in town two weeks later and would shoot the bears.

University credit courses offered in Drayton Valley

Two University of Alberta evening credit courses will be offered in Drayton Valley starting next month and more could be available by January if there is enough interest from local residents.

The two courses, starting in September, are open to high school graduates with grades of 60 to 65 per cent or higher and will be given at the H.W. Pichey Junior High school.

Education Administration 801 will begin September 8 at 6:00 p.m. with Dr. J. Pichey.

Education Psychology 801, a course on the psychology of exceptional children, will begin September 13 at 6:00 p.m. and the second session will be held September 18 at 9 a.m. It will continue every second weekend for seven sessions.

People who have previously attended the University of Alberta can register on the arrival of the first class.

Many more courses, including sociology, history, literature, English or Public administration, could be offered next fall.

At least 15 names of people interested in taking a course can be requested. So far only teachers have shown much interest in taking the credit courses.

"The university is more than willing to offer courses if the interest is there," says Mrs. Harris, who is the local contact person for the program.

"We'll like them to be more general courses for the public," she said. "The program isn't getting the response I would like."

The fee for a full course is $125 for 30 sessions. For a half course, the fee is about $75. Anyone who is interested in taking a course in January should contact Mrs. Harris, 543-0888 before October.

Three men charged in court after truck stolen at Elk River

Three men, of an Elmd address, appeared in provincial court yesterday to answer the charges of possession of stolen property.

Last Friday night, Ralph New of Calgary, reported RCMP had seen his 1974 Chevrolet truck stolen from the Elk River area.

Shortly after, three men were stopped by RCMP at Highway 620, near the intersection of Drayton Valley Highway for speed.

The RCMP officers arrived at the scene and noted that the vehicle had been stolen from the Elk River area.

Old Francis, 35, Sharon Opper, 18, and Ted Parvill, 19, were charged in court yesterday.

Brinco plans wells

Brinco Off and Gas Ltd. is planning to drill three oil wells near the intersection of Drayton Valley and Highway 620.

The wells will be drilled in the Carleton Place area, and the company expects to produce about 100 barrels of oil per day.

The company is not sure if all high test oil should be produced, as it is a possibility that the wells will produce some gas.

Fitness workshop comes to Red Deer

A Provincial Fitness Leadership Workshop will be held in Red Deer during two weekends, Sept. 19-21 and Sept. 26-27.

Alberta Recreation and Parks, the Kananis Fitness Centre and the City of Red Deer are jointly sponsoring this workshop designed to help Alberta's fitness instructors improve their leadership abilities. One hundred registrants will be accepted for the workshop on a "first come - first served" basis. The workshop brochure and application forms may be obtained from the regional office of Fitness Instruction and Parks.

Theory and practical sessions on the components of fitness, leadership skills and exercise program design will be offered at the workshop. A list of fitness instructors to be accepted for the workshop will be posted at the regional office of Fitness Instruction and Parks.

Stress and leadership. Level 3 classes will be conducted. The agenda for both levels includes special presentations on fitness programs which have been developed by Fitness Canada of the federal government. As well, resource material on fitness, nutrition, fitness for seniors and other related topics will be on display. A number of group and other organizations interested in fitness may sponsor individuals to attend the workshop.

Rules for bird bags unchanged this year

The Canadian Wildlife Service has announced regulations governing the 1980 migratory bird hunting season and bag and possession limits across Canada.

Regulations will find the regulations little changed from last year. However, the bag and possession limits across Canada have been designated through boundary revisions.

All migratory bird hunting, with the exception of hunts and Indians, are required to purchase a migratory game bird hunting permit. The permits, which cost $2.50 at post office throughout Canada, will be available until mid-August this year. Post offices also display posters which summarize the migratory bird regulations. Hunters are required to keep accurate daily records of their bags on the card attached to the hunting permit. Such information will be used to complete the 1980 migratory game bird harvest questionnaire which will be mailed to a random sample of hunters after the season. Data obtained from the returned questionnaire are a valuable aid to the determination of the number of waterfowl taken by hunters and the state of duck and goose populations in Canada.

A learning experience

Majority of bikers fail skill test

By Bob Lewis

The biker approaches the skidboard obstacle, and on instruction from a series of automated lights, reverses to his left, in an attempt to get around. He doesn't succeed, and the course starting the obstacle is crushed.

It could very well have been the rider that was crushed, if the cone had been a truck.

"I'd come and have a car or a truck, the rider would have been all over the front of it," says Bob Rank, a representative with the safety bureau of Alberta Transportation.

The test in the Motorcycle Operator Skill Test (MOSST), which Alberta Transportation is sponsoring in an effort to increase motorcycle rider's awareness of the road and its dangers.

Developed in 1979 by the National Public Service Research Institute in the United States for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Motorcycle Safety Foundation, the test came to Drayton Valley for a one-day run last week.

This is an excellent test to determine the rider's qualifications for the road, as well as the awareness of what is going on around him and his ability to control the bike," Mr. Rank says.

The test consists of six exercises set up in six manœuvre areas, and the difficulty of the exercises increases in the participant moves through the course.

The course tests the driver's ability in turning, stopping, speed and distance judgment, as well as his avoidance techniques, and Mr. Rank says many of those who take the test do poorly to it.

"You have conducted this test in Alberta for the last couple of years, and the number of people who have passed the course perfectly you could count on one hand. Indeed the test is tough, but it was designed that way so that participants would get a real idea of how well they ride, and perhaps learn a few lessons along the way."

"That is really what the test is for," Mr. Rank says. "It's a rider just wants to avoid a collision properly, the test is considered a success."

The skidboard avoidance exercise, which names some of the test, and which "nearly everyone fails on" is the toughest part of it, Mr. Rank says.

"You have to be in the position of what your instructor tell you to do, because if you don't, you'll either fall off your bike or you'll run into whatever it is you're trying to avoid."

The tough part is ignoring your instincts.

In a potential accident, the idea is to try to move the bike in the other possible direction, after first knowing that no other obstacles are in your way.

On a bike, if you want to turn left, you turn the wheel to the left, but the bike turns to the right, the bike turns to the left and the rider should immediately lean to the left as well.

As soon as the bike is turned right, it starts to lean to the left and the rider should immediately lean to the left as well, when it starts to do that, the rider only has to turn the wheel to the left and the bike turns to the left.

"The bike will automatically go back to the left, and when it starts to do that, the rider only has to turn the wheel to the left and the bike turns to the left."

Who is cleaning up the map?

When it comes to mapping place Albertans have generally been a pastoral bunch. We avoided such very heavy rollers as Peter Freeston in Quebec, heavily speck, even renamed Poudre a Texas Channel, Big Ass Lake (northwest of Babbler), or Orewell's Bear (Prime Edward Island, now called L'Esperance).

Offensive geographic names occur more frequently in the Atlantic provinces, British Columbia and the Yukon. Indeed, Alan Hay, executive secretary of the Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographic Names, this country's co-ordinating authority on place names.

Not that Alberta has a totally unblemished record. Take for instance that lapsed weed singer, once used extensively of black pipes. Once upon a time, you would find it in Nigger Head (near Medicine Hat, in Ontario) and in Niggerhead Mountain near Portland, B.C. (now renamed Niverville Mountain). But you also find it here, in Nigger John Ridge in Alberta's famous Custer.

Twenty years ago, with the advent of civil rights legislation for the black, pressure to have these apparently racist names were turned Nigger John Ridge into John Ware Ridge, commemorating the ex-slave who moved to Alberta in 1880.

But Alberta's most celebrated "title fight" occurred in Lethbridge, where a modest river's immediate name had the local businessmen up to arms and bring of advice to Ottawa. The river is question was the Billy, called the Hummel by David Thompson, on when he travelled through Brothers Alberta in 1815, the Hummel was the Blackfoot in name that the name stemmed and the Billy by all the settlers around the town of Lethbridge.

Or doesn't all. In June 1899, however, the local Board of Trade the Lethbridge of the modern chamber of commerce wrote to Ottawa, requesting a change of name "for reasons which are obvious."

The good brothers, proudly using the Canadian Pacific Railway's travel bridge gully up to the late 1920s were concerned that the new transportation committee would be "telling such stories to the name" of the Billy, which the board wanted changed to the Alberta River.

No deal, said the name committee in Ottawa. As guardians of 800,000 official names in Canada, the committee valued consistency.

However, indicate the Billy might be as Lethbridge's expansion-minded board of trade, it had been the name of the river for 78 years. Naming—or renaming—"is something that must be handled carefully and thoughtfully," says the Name Committee's promotional literature.

For years the letters went back and forth between Lethbridge and Ottawa. "One of our objectives," pleaded the board of trade in early 1910. "We are very much distressed with this situation."

present name. "Let your 'Ore' real objective... to have the name changed... to almost anything else." Three years later, the name "reverted." The present name is one that will not lend itself easily to conversation on all occasions.

In August 1918 a compromise was reached. The name Billy River would not be dropped altogether, but it would be restricted to "that portion of the stream between its source in Montana and joining with the Oldman River, 10 miles north of Lethbridge," the committee decided.

For 18 years the Billy River Committee stopped renaming. Then, in 1936, the name was changed to the Alberta River.

The Lodgepole Recreation Association is having their annual General Meeting on the 28th of August at 7:30 p.m. to take place at the Fire Hall. Everyone is urged to attend.

The Recreation Association is also sponsoring a family show featuring Billie Jo Johnson and Eleanor Dahl from Saskatchewan, as well as Mr. Christopher and his wife Peggy will live in Drayton Valley where she will teach craft one at Eldorado School.

The County of Parkland have completed repairs to the trailer court to the school grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Erickson recently attended the Battle of the Broom and school reunion, where they received the Friendship Award.

A warm welcome is being extended to Mr. Robert Christopher, Lodgepole's new teacher. Prior to coming to Lodgepole, Mr. Christopher taught in the Battle of the Broom and school reunion, where they received the Friendship Award.

Group discusses renovations to hall

By Mrs. K.C. Frank
775-2281

The regular meeting of the P.T.C. was held at the home of Elaine Greenwood. The discussion centered on the proposed improvements to the hall kitchen, a hot water tank and more shelving.

Suggestions were also given as to the funds to be applied to the new items which have been contributed on the north side of the hall grounds.

The same topic on the topic which involved the hall were recently mentioned. To replace them will involve a great deal of work.

Take that!
Greg Tucker, Drayton Valley Oiler's pitcher, takes a dead aim and follows through on a pitch to an Easyford Colt during the second game of the Oilfield Baseball League's final series on Thursday night. Tucker allowed only three hits and struck out nine Colts before he had four batters to an 8-2 win in the game and a perfect score of 1-1.

25th anniversary party held for Jorgesens

By Keith Day
Mrs. Jorgensen, of Wildwood, only child of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Jorgensen, arranged a surprise 25th wedding anniversary party for her parents in the Legion Hall here Aug. 22.

The couple was at the door by several members of the family including their only grandchild.

Guests at the head table included, besides the bride and groom, the standbys at the marriage 25 years ago, Arnold Jorgensen, who served as his mother's best man, and Mrs. Elizabeth Whyte Harding, the bride's maid. Also at the head table were the Jens Jorgensen Jr. and Mrs. Thelma Harding. Mr. Ray Wenzel was Master of Ceremonies.

The M.C. spoke of his association with the groom in the classroom and his many accomplishments in the field of education. He also paid tribute to the bride for outstanding contributions she has made to the Scout Movement.

Out of town guests came from Edson, Beauvalley, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Devonshire, Estevan, Watrous, and other places. Mrs. Jorgensen, who was married in Drayton Valley Union Church on Aug. 18, 1955, was the bride. Her groom, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thomas, joined the "honorable and ancient order of grand parents."

When Steady Lee Thomas arrived in our local hospital recently not only were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne made parents for the first time, but Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thomas joined the "honorable and ancient order of grand parents."

COUNTY OF PARKLAND NO. 31

Community Schools

The County of Parkland is closely monitoring the extent of community use and community involvement within all schools in order to take advantage of the new Community School legislation which has been adopted by the provincial government. While many schools within the County offer some aspects of community school programming, they do not qualify since all three criteria cannot be met. The Board of Education selected Muir Lake as the first school to receive the designation of "community school". At the present time a level is being prepared to recognize the Board's application to the provincial government. If the Board is successful in its application, Muir Lake will be one of a small number of schools within the province to obtain the designation.

The provincial government is supporting the community school in order to take education beyond the classroom walls to any community. This program will enhance education by relating school curriculum to the real life situations encountered within the community. Further, by increasing the integration of the school within the community, residents will be encouraged to make optimum use of school facilities both during the day and during the evenings for social, cultural and recreational activities. The last criteria which must be met in order to obtain designated Community School status are listed below.

- 1. COMMUNITY RELATED CURRICULUM
Board education is oriented to relating the curriculum to the needs and interests of the community. Attention is given to the needs of the community, and the curriculum is designed to meet these needs. This is done by having teachers who are active in the community and who are aware of the needs of the community. The curriculum is designed to meet the needs of the community and to provide a learning experience for the students which is relevant to their lives.
- 2. INVOLVEMENT OF PARENTS
There is an effective involvement of parents and other community members in the school. This is done by having parents and other community members involved in the school in a variety of ways. This includes attending school meetings, participating in school activities, and helping with the school in various ways.

CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS

1. FOREST GREEN ELEMENTARY COKE
The construction of the Forest Green Elementary School is well along and completely enclosed for wide work. The unusual summer rains slowed construction by about three weeks, but it is still expected that the school will be ready for occupancy in January, 1981.

2. MAIR LAKES COMMUNITY COKE
The Mair Lakes School is up to the beginning of the school year. The construction will not be fully complete but classrooms and administrative areas will be fully occupied. The gymnasium floor will be installed as soon as possible and the access to the school should be nearly complete. Special arrangements may be made with the Mair Lakes Community League to use their parking area temporarily.

3. BROOKTON PARK PORTABLES
The free-standing "Quad-Pod" for Brookton Park should be in place by school opening. The site is presently ready to receive the portable facilities, which are currently on the assembly line.

4. KILPATRICK SCHOOL
Parkland School is ready to receive two additional portable classrooms to be added to the south end of the school. Footings are in place and the portable units are under construction at the factory.

5. KILPATRICK ADDITION
Kilpatrick School requires the relocation of two portables presently on the line with four additional units, which will comprise a portable pod attached to the main building. The footings are complete. We are presently awaiting delivery of the four portables and the equipment units necessary to relocate the other two units.

6. BLUEBERRY STARTER SCHOOL
Although not under construction the Blueberry Starter School at Seacow View Estates will not be ready for occupancy till late September or mid-October. One grading has now been completed, the access road built, the septic field constructed, the well drilled and tested, and the four-portable classrooms are in the interior finishing stages. The portable portable classrooms will be delivered to the site momentarily. Gas, power, and telephones are expected to be connected at any time. The furnaces are presently being shipped and will be on site as an option of a week or two.

7. DUFFIELD ADDITIONS
This project will be available for occupancy at the commencement of the school year. Some aspects of the project are not completed, such as the hanging of doors, the completion of the grounds. However, these activities should not interfere with the smooth running of the school program.

8. SPURGE GROVE COMPOSITE HIGH SCHOOL
This project is moving along rapidly and the June, 1981 completion date is still a realistic target. The shop areas will be ready for occupancy in the second semester of the year. The site work will be undertaken this summer and the parking lot and access from Colton Road will be finished this fall.

Viking remains found on coast

By Claude R. Lomax

The little settlement of L'Anse-au-Meadows, Newfoundland, suddenly came into prominence after the 1970s when archaeologists found evidence of early Viking landing.

Much has been written about this amazing discovery since it was made, but it is not yet clear whether L'Anse-au-Meadows was a Viking landing site or not. If it was, the discovery of the site would be a major archaeological find. The site is located on the coast of Newfoundland, Canada, and is believed to be the site of a Viking settlement. The site is located on the coast of Newfoundland, Canada, and is believed to be the site of a Viking settlement.

The remains of eight buildings at L'Anse-au-Meadows are still being excavated by archaeologists and geologists. Discovery

We can have peace today

By Rev. A.F. Irving
We live in a world of serious turmoil. On the international scene we are reminded that it was just 40 years ago that the world, including Canada, was plunged into World War II. It was to have been and war to end wars, but we all are aware of the current still present in our world today. Our labor market is constantly being plagued by strikes, slow downs, or lock-outs.

Our homes and communities have been torn apart today. I believe there is and it can be found as a by-product of a result of other things. Inward, personal peace comes as a result of right relationships with God.

The message of the angel in the birth of Christ told of peace. "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men." (Luke 2:14)

Before Jesus left this world to give a further message of peace to the disciples.

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you not to the world, but to you who believe in me, and have abided in the word which I have given you, that you may have peace, and that your hearts may be at ease." (John 14:27)

Rev. A.F. Irving

Canadians moving to big cities

One hundred years ago, 80 per cent of the Canadian population was rural. Today, 50 out of 100 Canadians live in cities.

By the end of the century, half of Canada's population will live in the three major urban areas of Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

Other cities will have a population between a million and two million.

How can the United Church of Canada cope with this rapid increase in urbanization?

Twenty-five per cent of the Church's pastoral charges had 70 per cent of its preaching people in rural and small town Canada.

At the same time, the Church's pastoral charges with a number of metropolitan area churches that are old, underused and increasingly expensive to maintain and operate.

Should the Church cut its losses and ditch these churches? Or should it initiate a program to have the buildings open to create a sense of "humanism and brotherhood" in a depressed, isolated environment?

Three years ago, The United Church of Canada asked a church task group to prepare a theological paper on the Church's mission and ministry in the metropolitan area.

The report recommends the promotion of a metropolitan perspective among United Church people; the development of strategies for effective urban ministry; the provision of resources to help parishes and congregations; and the clustering of parishes and congregations in urban and other cities.

Wayside Gleanings

Nature shows the way

By M. Jay Hughes

Darwin's Pigeon started as a school project in a little classroom.

It started in a little bit of soil, watered it, and watched it grow and grow.

When the blossoms began to grow, we saw lots of little "girly blossoms" they were the ones that had a little bulb at the base of the flower, and there were quite a few.

"Girly" blossoms too. They did not have any little bulb, but opened and had lots of pollen on their inner stems.

When the flowers opened the bees came and carried pollen from the boy blossoms, and they landed in the girly blossoms, they left pollen on them.

All the girly blossoms now closed, and they all looked like little, little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

They were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs, and they were all little bulbs.

Branch offices located in the Holy Spirit who brings the Power of Eternal Life from God—what is the word? For spirit of Jesus that makes us our spirit to bring forth the New Birth.

That New Birth enables us to feed, and grow, and develop. Thus our "nature" is as the seeds of the Gospel and is given forth as we grow up in the Lord.

The Bible says "You can have without a French car," and how say they preach, except they say "Just as the first people and died of God's will in order to come up a vine and produce more people, so Jesus died in order to make the way for the New Birth, the seed of his death." (Romans 8:3)

Many think and in many ways God tells us how much we need to be born into Jesus' family during this present time, and this is one more illustration of this very important truth.
